A Continuing Medical Education Activity

STATEMENT OF NEED

Continual advances in clinical science require pediatricians and family physicians to obtain comprehensive, up-to-date knowledge on a wide variety of clinical issues that may be encountered in daily practice. This course will focus on clinical management strategies of conditions in dermatology, otolaryngology, emergency care, pediatric surgery, endocrinology, cardiology, neonatology, brain and behavior and gastroenterology. There will be ample opportunity for questions and cases.

TARGET AUDIENCE

This is a regional conference designed to meet the educational needs of:

- Physicians specializing in pediatrics and family practice
- Nurse Practitioners
- Nurses
- Allied Health Professionals

LEARNING OBJECTIVES

At the conclusion of this activity, participants should be able to:

- Develop strategies to counsel parents on their child's IEP and school assessment plans.
- Differentiate between ingested foreign bodies that can be treated in the office with those that need emergency care.
- Recognize the early signs of sepsis in an infant and treat or refer.
- Evaluate updates/advances in celiac disease and their impact on patient care.

ACCREDITATION AND DESIGNATION OF CREDITS

The Stanford University School of Medicine is accredited by the Accreditation Council for Continuing Medical Education (ACCME) to provide continuing medical education for physicians.

The Stanford University School of Medicine designates this live activity for a maximum of 6.0 AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™. Physicians should claim only the credit commensurate with the extent of their participation in the activity.

Nurses: The California Board of Registered Nursing recognizes that Continuing Medical Education (CME) is acceptable for meeting RN continuing education requirements as long as the course is certified for AMA PRA Category 1 Credits™ (rn.ca.gov). Nurses will receive a Certificate of Participation following this activity that may be used for license renewal.
